Additional information:	1. System responsible for the deposit guarantee Deposits are covered by the statutory deposit guarantee. In Finland, the entity responsible for the deposit guarantee is the Financial Stability Authority. The deposit guarantee reimburses depositors' assets if they are not available for use if a credit institution gets into permanent financial difficulties. The compensation is at most EUR 100,000 per one credit institution.

2. Maximum amount of deposit guarantee

In the event of a deposit bank's insolvency, the deposit guarantee compensates the deposit up to a maximum amount of EUR 100,000. The maximum amount of the compensation is depositor- and credit institution-specific. This means that the amount of the compensation is determined by adding together all a depositor's deposits in a single credit institution. If, for example, a depositor has EUR 90,000 in a deposit account and EUR 20,000 in a current account, a total of only EUR 100,000 will be compensated to the depositor.

3. Deposit guarantee for assets obtained from sale of dwellings

The deposit guarantee covers assets obtained from the sale of dwellings in full for six months if the assets are intended to be used for buying an apartment for one's own use. In this case, the depositor's receivable is paid in full if the depositor can reliably prove that the receivable is based on assets that the depositor has received from the sale of a dwelling in its own use and that the assets will be used to obtain a new apartment that will be used by the depositor. Assets obtained from the sale of dwellings are subject to the special protection described above for six months after making the deposit. For more information: <http://talletussuoja.fi>

4. Protected depositors

All deposits made by private individuals and most deposits made by companies, associations and foundations are generally covered by the deposit guarantee. Certain kinds of depositors are excluded from the deposit guarantee. The website of the Financial Stability Authority describes the exceptions in the scope of application of the deposit guarantee. A private trader does not have an independent deposit guarantee, separate from the person owning the business. Accordingly, the deposit guarantee of a private trader includes both the private assets of the natural person owning the business, as well as the assets associated with the business of the private trader. The account statements that are delivered to customers also state whether an account is covered by the deposit guarantee. Our bank will gladly provide information on which of its products are covered by the deposit guarantee.

5. Compensation

If your receivables have not been compensated within the compensation period, please contact the Financial Stability Authority without delay. For more information: <http://talletussuoja.fi>
